

UNBUILT BERLIN The Property Show

Seminar week 19/03/18 - 23/03/18

Christian Kerez & Arno Brandhuber

Seminar weeks usually are concerned with the past. Students will visit places already built in the past some moments ago, some years ago, some decades, some centuries ago. We will visit Berlin as an architect will visit a plot, as an architect visits a city to be designed or built in the future. We will not visit Berlin as an already built city but as a plot waiting to be built in the near future. We will visit sites where planing or building already started. We will visit sites where the future development of the city could or should take place. Doing so we will take a look of various visions how Berlin was supposed to change, a look also at the unbuilt Berlin of the past to relate it to the present imagination of a new, changing Berlin of nowadays.

Students are requested to illustrate how a future or past imagination on the sites that will be visited could look like in the future, Sketches, collages, fotos all admitted.
